Water Utilities

Water supply actions - Following closely behind the San Diego County Water Authority's January 26 declaration of an end to the drought, State Water Board officials yesterday released a draft of Proposed Regulation extending the current emergency drought regulations that were set to expire at the end of this month. The Board recognizes the significant snow and rainfall experienced this year, but holds that the full picture of the state's hydrologic water conditions for 2016/2017 remain unclear and subject to a number of variables at least through the end of the spring. They are therefore requesting an extension of the regulations until the end of April in order to better gauge drought conditions at that time.

The City of Oceanside moved to a Level 1 Drought Watch in July 2016, calling for voluntary conservation and continued vigilance in water use efficiency. Since then, Oceanside residents and business owners have demonstrated their commitment to wise and efficient use of water with a sustained water use reduction of over 18% compared to the base year 2013 being used by the state as a metric for compliance.
