Census 2010

The U.S. Census Bureau will begin using the former community computer center space in January as a testing and training center for Census 2010 workers. Census 2010 will be conducted by mail but there will still be extensive need for part-time workers to process returns and to follow up on households that do not respond. The Census Bureau wants to ensure that every person is counted and particularly wants to hire persons from neighborhoods considered "hard to count." Bilingual applicants are particularly needed. Interested persons may call 1(866)861-2010 for information and to arrange to take the entry test.
